Feb. 4, 2016 IIW TMB Meeting Report

Patricio F. Mendez

This is my report of participation as Member the IIW TMB (Technical Management Board) on February 4, 2016. A portion of the TMB meeting was together with the CHAIRS committee (Chairs of the Working Units). Attached are the agendas of both portions of the meeting.

I also Attended Group A (Education, Training and Qualification) to learn about IIW's current status and direction regarding accreditation, in particular regarding the IWE accreditation. There was no meaningful discussion regarding IWE, instead the focus was on other certifications.

Below is a summary of the key points discussed during the TMB meeting.

Standardisation activities

Andrew Davis, from AWS (USA) reported on coordination with ISO. He described coordination with ISO TC44 is not as smooth as desirable. One of the reasons is that ISO has targets of 18 months for publication of standards, IIW prefers no deadlines.

Report from Welding in the World Editorial Board

IIW journal, Welding in the World (WiW), is undergoing major changes. The most significant is opening it up for submissions from people external to IIW. WiW makes a significant contribution to the financial balance of IIW, and much attention was devoted to this journal.

Thomas Böllinghaus, from BAM (Germany) is one of the editors of WiW. At the time of the meeting, WiW had 15 papers per issue, each article averaging 10 printed pages. A particular feature of WiW is that it does not currently set page limits to the articles. The impact factor of WiW (a metric of how frequently WiW papers are cited in the last 5 years) is increasing, expected to be .8 by summer.

With the change of accepting open submissions in WiW, another change is that submissions now undergo anonymous peer-review with a minimum of two reviewers.

The change to peer-review resulted in that almost all papers recommended at the Annual Assembly are not published. Also, some papers were submitted by invitation and subsequently rejected, creating bad feelings with authors.

Luca Costa, Chair of the TMB also discussed a proposed algorithm for submission. WiW does not follow typical review procedures, as it also involves the technical commissions in addition to a pool of reviewers. There does not seem to be good understanding or agreement in the commission on the best algorithm at this stage.

Feedback from Helsinki 2015

The TMB Chair, Luca Costa, and the IIW CEO, Cecille Mayer reported on the post-assembly satisfaction survey. The overall response is that attendants to the Annual Assembly are happy with the chairs and the meetings.

Intellectual Property policy in the IIW

The TMB invited an expert on IP, C. Mennel, to discuss IP issues. The current policy of the IIW was presented and the expert also discussed recent evolutions. There was no concrete conclusion, with confusion about economic and moral rights. Andrew David (AWS/USA) commented on his experience from AWS and Standardization committees. IIW currently has forms regarding economic rights (which might be not be waived: form RD021, or waived: form RD024)

Management of IIW Working Units

Luca Costa reported on units that are inactive. In particular, SC-SHIP is inactive, and it was proposed to disband it.

IIW Awards 2016/L. Costa

The awards below were discussed. Voting was performed ahead of the meeting by mail ballot or by specific committees.

- a. The Fellow of IIW Award
- b. The Regional Activities Award
- c. The Halil Kaya Gedik Award
- d. Henry Granjon Prize (Categories A, B & C)
- e. The Yoshiaki Arata Award
- f. The Evgeny Paton Prize
- g. The Thomas Medal
- h. The Arthur Smith Award
- i. The André Leroy Award
- j. Welding in the World “Best Paper Award”

The rules for the Fellow of IIW were clarified, as there was confusion on an IIW Fellow nomination from China which was deemed incomplete. This rejection generated bad feelings.

Code of Conduct for IIW Chairmen of Technical Working Units (TMB-0370-15)

Gerhard Posch (Fronius/Austria) discussed the need to avoid conflicts with German anti-trust laws. It is important to avoid commercial, pricing, market information. If rules abiding German laws are not implemented, it might prevent companies with German operations from attending the Annual Assembly.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE WEBSITE

Following new features have been implemented in 2014:

The libraries now contains 16,203 downloadable files (was 14,848 in January 2015) and the total of records in the technical database is now 22,539 (was 15,900 in January 2015).

Upgrade to SharePoint 2013

The proposal received in June 2015 was discussed internally and with the help of CWB IT head. It appeared that the proposed solution, consisting of a perilous migration from 2007 version was not the most suitable one. In addition, the technical choices (using Sharepoint public sites) were not in adequacy with current trends. Finally, the envisaged cost for the project was equivalent to the one carried out in 2009 but without any major modernisation.

The IT partner was requested to re-examine their proposal. The methodology is the following:

- Definition of the technical pre-requisite (December 2015)
- Organisation of working session (2 days in January) to determine which developed features would be possible to adapt to the envisaged technical solution,
- Quotation by the end of March 2016,
- Project definition and launching of pilot phase April-July.
- Development September-December
- Testing and adjusting: first semester 2017
- Final delivery: 2017 Assembly.

MAINTENANCE AND EVOLUTION

No technical major update was done on the website in 2015. Several days were spent on the programming of the instructions to upload scanned history files.

A 10-day contract was established with our IT partner in 2016 to assure the technical assistance, maintenance and guidance to usage of the new version of SharePoint not covered by the contract clauses on training.

It must be noted that Sharepoint 2007 technology is now obsolete and the stability of the web platform has become critical. Backup procedures are being re-enforced and completely tested during the first quarter of 2016.

PUBLICATION ACTIVITIES

BOOKS AND BOOKLETS

The publication of "Recommendations for Fatigue Design of Welding Joints and Components" (Prof. A.F. Hobbacher was achieved in December – official issue is January 2016.

WELDING IN THE WORLD (REFER TO CHAIR-0382 FOR STATISTICS)

In the second semester an important work to follow-up key data of the peer review and production stage has been carried out in collaboration with Springer. As a result, new dashboards are now available for Editors in Chief and Chairs to monitor the performances of the journal in real time.

Specific dashboards for Chairs have been prepared per year of recommendation (see below). All these new tools are fully customizable and will be adapted to users' needs.

STANDARDIZATION ACTIVITIES

The following standards have been published in 2015:

ISO 10447:2015 (Ed. 3) Resistance welding -- Testing of welds -- Peel and chisel testing of resistance spot and projection welds

ISO 14323:2015 (Ed. 2) Resistance welding -- Destructive testing of welds -- Specimen dimensions and procedure for impact tensile shear test and cross-tension testing of resistance spot and embossed projection welds

ISO 14373:2015 (Ed. 2) Resistance welding -- Procedure for spot welding of uncoated and coated low carbon steels

Details of the work programme are given in document WG-STAND-0205-16 (WG-STAND-0205-16 WG-STAND work program 2016-01-15)

As a summary there are currently:

24 published standards in IIW

4 new ISO deliverables under development

4 standards under systematic review.
