

CCIIW BURSARY 2020

One or more bursaries is/are being offered by the CCIW for the 73rd Annual Assembly and International Conference of the International Institute of Welding to be held in Singapore, from July 19th-24th, 2020. The details/program for the Assembly can be found at www.iiw2020.com.

The bursary covers:

- a) the cost of the full early registration fee only; or
- b) the cost of the full early registration fee and a portion of travel expenses for the Annual Assembly; or
- c) a portion of travel expenses associated with attending the Annual Assembly for IIW Prize/Award winners (registration fees are complimentary).

The decision is made by the sponsor members of the Canadian Council of the IIW.

Purpose of the CCIW Bursary

- To increase Canadian participation in the work of the IIW through partial financial assistance to those who are genuinely interested in enriching their own welding technological background and who, through meaningful personal input into the work of the IIW, can ultimately direct benefits to Canadian Industry.
- To foster direct Canadian involvement in international welding activities and help Canada gain in stature as a progressive industrial country.
- To fund new individuals to attend the Assembly to see the value in the IIW work in the hope that they subsequently become a regular attendee and continue in the activities of IIW.

Attendance at the Annual Assembly facilitates international exchange of information, direct input into development of international standards, and provides a forum for networking.

Eligibility

All persons who demonstrate an ongoing active interest in the field of welding; IIW Prize/Award winners; and students. New applicants will be given priority over past Bursary winners. Members and employees of the contributing organizations to CCIW are excluded.

Conditions

The recipient(s) is/are expected to assume the following obligations:

1. To attend all the meetings of at least one Commission during the Assembly.
2. To submit within two months following the Assembly, a short report (500-1000 words) giving their personal analysis of the Assembly, Commission sessions attended, and other functions from the point of view of benefits to Canadian Industry.
